

WOODROW WILSON

Biographical Sketch of Choice of Baltimore Convention as

STANDARD-BEARER

Born in Virginia—Thoroughly Educated—Governor of New Jersey—President of Princeton.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson was born at Staunton, Va., on December 28, 1856. He is the son of Dr. Joseph R. Wilson, a Presbyterian minister, and the grandson of Judge James Wilson, an Irishman of Scotch descent who migrated from County Down to Philadelphia in 1807. James Wilson prospered and became manager of the Aurora, a leading Democratic journal, Philadelphia then being the national capital.

At Steubenville, O., Joseph Ruggles Wilson, the father of Woodrow Wilson, was born on February 28, 1822. He was the son of James Wilson's family. In 1849 Joseph R. Wilson married Janet Woodrow, daughter of Dr. Thomas Woodrow, a famous Presbyterian minister of the day, who was a descendant from ancient English stock. Rev. Mr. Wilson became the father of two daughters before he was called as pastor to Staunton, Va., where a third child, a son, was born and christened Thomas Woodrow.

When Thomas Woodrow was two years old his father took a pastorate in Augusta, Ga., and soon became one of the most noted ministers of the South.

Tommy Wilson, the Augusta schoolboy, is described by Prof. John T. Derby, one of his teachers, as quiet and exceptionally studious. The most important instructor of young Wilson, however, was his father, a man of wide information on the affairs of the world.

The Wilsons moved from Augusta to Columbia, S. C., in 1870. Dr. Wilson resigning his pastorate to take the Chair of Pastoral and Evangelistic Theology in the Southern Presbyterian Theological Seminary at Columbia. Tommy attended Charles Parnell's private school. At the age of 17 he entered Davidson College at Davidson, N. C.

He did not finish the year at Davidson, for he fell ill before examinations came on and was taken to his home, now at Wilmington, N. C., where his father had taken a pastorate. Here Wilson took things comparatively easy for a year. Except for tutoring in Greek and a few other studies that he thought might be necessary for entrance to Princeton, he busied himself with reading, looking up the historic points of the city and with the social uplift of the city.

In September, 1875, he entered Princeton College. About this time he dropped his Christian name Thomas, and became known as Woodrow Wilson.

Woodrow Wilson attained prominence among his mates in the "famous class of '79." No less than 42 of the 122 graduates of '79 proved to be "honorable men" having an average of 90 per cent. or better for the four years' course. Wilson got in among them; he ranked forty-first.

Besides being a good student at Princeton, Wilson became managing editor of the college paper and was prominent in undergraduate activities. He spent a great deal of his time in the College library, specializing on government, the theory of it, and the lives of political leaders. To this he added assiduous practice in writing and extemporaneous speaking. He belonged to Whig Hall and the Liberal Debating Club.

At the age of 22 he signaled the closing days of his undergraduate work at Princeton by breaking into the International Review, in its issue of August, 1879, with an article entitled, "Cabinet Government in the United States." The article contrasted British and American systems of government.

In the fall of 1879 Wilson took up the law course at the University of Virginia, where he indulged in a long, drooping moustache, and in membership in the glee club. "She Sleeps, My Lady Sleeps" is shown by old programs of university concerts to have been one of Wilson's tenor solos.

In May 1882 he carried his law diploma and an oratorical prize to Atlanta, Ga., where he opened an office for the practice of law. The office, however, did not prosper; and after eighteen leisure months he gave up. The Atlanta experiment, however, was far from fruitless. Although litigants gave him nothing to do, he was not idle. He improved his time by securing the promise of Miss Ellen Louise Axson to be his wife. The Axsons were a prominent Georgia lowlands family. The young couple were married in 1875.

In 1885 appeared "Congressional Government, a Study of Government by Committee" by Woodrow Wilson. The bulk of the labor on this volume was done during Wilson's two-year course in science of government in Johns Hopkins University, which accepted the work as a thesis and conferred upon the author the degree of Ph. D.

In the fall of 1885 Mr. Wilson began teaching political economy to the girls of Bryn Mawr. From this institution he went to Wesleyan University where he remained until called to Princeton in 1890 to occupy the chair of jurisprudence and politics. In 1902 he was elected president of Princeton.

President Wilson made it clear at the start that conditions at the University were to be changed, and whether for better or for worse, to be changed radically. He stated that colleges needed to be revolutionized and went so far as to say he would endeavor to graduate students as unlike their fathers as possible.

His policies kept him in almost continuous conflict with the University trustees and professors. In May 1910 the Graduate College of Princeton University became the legatee of a three million dollar estate which could not be accepted without sacrificing Wilson's policies. The money was accepted. The President's resignation did not come, however, until after the New Jersey State Democratic Convention, on September 15, 1910, had nominated him for the governorship. In the following November New Jersey went Democratic for the first time since 1892 and elected Wilson by a large majority.

The spare, well-formed, gray-eyed man started his campaign by ordering the state chairman of his party out of office, never to return. He also forced through a Democratic Assembly and Republican Senate a direct primary and election law which takes the organization of both parties in New Jersey out of the hands of the bosses.

The earliest record mentioned of Woodrow Wilson as a Presidential possibility is in the form of a letter written by some one in Indianapolis to the News of that city at the time of Wilson's inauguration as president of Princeton. This faint boom was revived on February 3, 1906, at the Lotus Club, New York, where Mr. Wilson was the guest of honor. On that occasion Col. George Harvey mentioned him as a possible candidate for the Presidential nomination.

It was as an author that Mr. Wilson first achieved a degree of fame outside of Princeton. As an author he is now well known. His largest literary achievement is his five volume "History of the American People."

As to his reasons for writing the history, he has said:

"I wanted to make my own conceptions of American history definite, and I wanted others to see American history and American men as I myself have."

A course of lectures delivered at Columbia University in 1908 contained the substance of his first book "Congressional Government," and they were brought up to date by his attempt to show how in the years between 1886 and 1908 responsibility gravitated toward the President of the United States.

Mr. Wilson's second book, "The State," is used as a text book in many schools and colleges. This was followed by two books of essays. Then came "George Washington," and "The History of the American People."

Mr. Wilson has made countless educational addresses and has written a great number of essays on political, educational and economic topics which have never been put into book form. His style in writing is clear and vigorous and his diction, both in writing and speaking, is noteworthy for its choice.

DAY OF OLD GLORY

WILSON AND MARSHALL

Chosen by Baltimore Convention as Democratic Candidates

Nomination Made on 46th Ballot

Break Started on 43rd—Underwood Withdrew in Wilson's Favor Before 46th—Indiana's Governor Named by Acclamation for Vice President—A Strong and Progressive Platform—Result of Successive Votes

Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey, was nominated for President of the United States by the Democratic National Convention on the 46th ballot at 3:15 o'clock on Tuesday, the vote being, as shown in a table of all the ballots in this issue: Wilson, 990; Clark, 84; Harmon, 12.

At 3:33 o'clock the vote was made unanimous, after which the convention adjourned to 9 o'clock p. m.

At 1:50 o'clock Wednesday morning Gov. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana was nominated for Vice President by acclamation.

The 45th ballot left Wilson only 93 votes short of the necessary two-thirds to nominate after which Underwood withdrew as a candidate.

The big break was made on the 43rd ballot, the first of Tuesday afternoon's session, when Illinois switched 58 votes from Clark to Wilson and the West Virginia delegation of 16 also went to the Jersey Governor; Michigan, too, gave him 8, which with minor accessions raised his total to 602.

The Pennsylvania delegation of 76 went solidly for Wilson on the 44th ballot.

The convention was long-drawn-out and the contest was a heated one from the first to the last ballot, but at the conclusion of the balloting all factions were satisfied with the convention's choice of Governor Wilson and congratulations and pledges of support came from all quarters.

As a result of a run of Ford cars, mostly from Somerset County, 38 cars were to be seen in a string on the Springs lawn last Sunday at noon and 200 tourists dined at our popular resort. The delegation from over the mountain would have been much larger had it not rained in the neighboring county the preceding night.

General Agent Stahl of Somerset and his party were met on the mountain by L. D. Blackwelder, of Blackwelder and Pepple, local agents for the Ford, and a party of Bedford friends. The run was made from Somerset in less than two hours and the tourists expressed themselves as well pleased with the new state road and with The Springs.

The Geysers the Most Attractive of the Many Wonders of the Day's Journey in the Great Park.

Fortune favored us while near the Old Faithful, and from its edge at the close of the play, gazing westward could be seen the beautiful sunset the farthest boundary of a region alive with spouting springs.

After supper, the entire party bent their course toward the Old Faithful Inn, the House DeLuxe, in the rustic style. What a magnificent structure! Six stories high, and all of twisted, knotted timbers with the bark still intact and covered with moss. Floors and steps were half-log hewn. Door latches of ye olden time style sufficiently bulky to fill the hand as you grasped. A massive stone and wooden chimney 12 feet wide. The quaint old "candle," and a mass of human enjoyment. By 10 o'clock, the crowd had congregated beyond the crater of the Old Faithful, and when the spasmodic spurts of water, forerunners of the grand serenade began, all grew silent among the people and all remained so with them until the search-light threw its varicolored beams upon the mass of steam rising in a dense cloud skyward. Exclamations of ecstasy arose in unison. The sight was thrilling; but soon the four minutes had gone by, and all was darkness; yet the vision lingered, and as many said, it could never die. Back we went to camp and rest.

It was Sunday morning about 5 o'clock, when the Riverside "let loose" again, and glad we were to see it play in the bright morning air. The noise was sufficient going to wake us, and the next minute our heads alone had found a port hole in the tent, or made one. We could not afford to miss a single act. At 8:30 a. m., we were off to the Kepler Cascades. The altitude was 7,587 feet. A side trip took up in to the Lone Star geyser, where, after a long wait, it satisfied our longings. Two deer came bounding out of the forest while we stayed, and then as the camera snapped, they bounded away among the pines. After a drive of greater length than usual, an altitude of 7,897, brought us beside the snowbanks, when a snow ball fight ensued. Bucks were seen feeding in the forest shortly before we reached the Continental Divide at 8,331 feet. Here a lake (Isa) lay feeding streams that entered the Atlantic and the Pacific. Two miles of corkscrew hill brought the Shoshone Lake to view. Here at an altitude of 8,317, grew Dandelions in a mass and Shooting Stars again were seen among the anthers. Again the divide was ascended, and crossed at almost 9,000 feet, where grew the gnarled timber used in the construction of the Inn. Just a few minutes before appeared a beautiful sight that satisfied the most scrupulous with respect to seeing things at a distance. Away off, fifty miles beyond us, towered the three snow-capped Sentinels of the Teton Mountains. These could be seen plainly with the naked eye, and the camera saw them too. These peaks formed a portion of the boundary between the states of Idaho and Wyoming. To the uninformed Pennsylvanian, to see fifty miles is an absurdity, with either naked eye or camera.

A few minutes more and the West Thumb of the Yellowstone Lake, nestled among the forest-crowned hills which bound our vision, seemed covered with waves dancing and sparkling in the sunlight, making all appear like a great inland sea. It was Sunday, as before stated, and the good in nature seemed to thrill all on board until the old familiar church hymns rang out in chorus style and all sang until they could sing no more. At the end of a 21 mile drive, we settled down for lunch at noon by the lake. While basking in the sunshine by the side of a hot spring at the edge of the lake (7,725 feet) I was much surprised to find a group of beautiful Fringed Gentians, a find to me most rare. It occurred to me just then, that the next trip would find us carrying a portable botany press to secure the rarer plants which there grow in plenty.

At 3:45 p. m., our team was ready again, although we walked for recreation for some time along the lake side, and then mounted the wagon to resume the pleasures of companionship. The more sacred hymns gave way to ditties, melodies, jest and laughter to the limit. Our stomachs ached either with over exercise or excessive dust that here knew no sprinkler. Slowly, but surely, our horses trudged along up over the steep inclines until we reached the highest point on the road—9,498 feet above sea level. The mellowed even-

PILES DISAPPEAR

So Does Eczema, Salt Rheum, Ulcers, Old Sores and Carbuncles.

Under the influence of San Cura Ointment surprising cures are made so quickly that they seem like miracles.

Stubborn cases of piles like those of Rev. W. F. Gilbert of Titusville, Pa., vanish before the marvelous antiseptic Ointment. Mr. Gilbert writes:

"For twenty years I suffered with bleeding and itching piles; at times I was confined to the house for more than a month. Two years ago I began using San Cura Ointment and one 50c jar made a firm and permanent cure. I have not been troubled since." San Cura Ointment is guaranteed by Ed. D. Heckerman, who is the agent in Bedford, to cure any of the above named diseases or money back. It instantly kills all pain from burns, cuts and bruises, draws out the poison and heals in a short time. 25 cents and 50 cents a jar at Ed. D. Heckerman's.

Good Baby Soap

San Cura is a healing and antiseptic soap; just the soothing kind that baby needs. It frees the pores from all impurities and prevents fevers, rashes and other infantile diseases. Best for anyone's skin, cures pimples and blackheads, cleans the complexion. 25 cents a large cake at Ed. D. Heckerman's.

ing light, for it was now five, aided the bare pines to show their beautiful green tops to best effect. Here also were the knotted woods, with every tree either a cripple or a follower of custom in a supernatural growth. Then came a mile of very low pines as we descended the hill, and then a mile of beautiful meadows almost two thousand feet lower than we had been but a few minutes before. Here grew Larkspurs, Lupine, Sagebrush and Phlox.

Back in that country school, the teacher had told us of the wonderful Natural Bridge of Virginia. Here was one of similar shape, and the team stopped to let us climb to see it more closely. But for the myriads of mosquitoes of the same overgrown size as those which visited us at Livingston, we might have stayed much longer. Our supply of Skeeter Skoot was uncovered and used freely, and after ridding ourselves of the pests, wondered however we could have existed without it. As we passed the Shaw & Powell camp, our cook, hereafter called "Tom" referred to in the breakdown, came galloping past us without a bridle. As he went by, some remark was made regarding showing us how to fish. Not long thereafter, as we crossed a bridge, his voice was heard somewhere, and the team stopped. The temptation was too great, and away I went down over the hill toward the place where we all had heard the voice. I found him pulling out the trout in lively order. His plan was imitated and soon we felt as light-hearted as the teacher, and more so inasmuch as it was a new adventure. I soon had five splendid trout, and with his number we trudged up over the hill again to "the wagon. The Scotchman of Klondike experience, and veteran fisherman was somewhat amazed, but declared he would "get even" later. In a moment Tom was was off in the dust and out of sight.

That evening was spent in camp by the lake. A splendid supper was prepared and indulged in heartily. The drive was the longest of any previous day. The moon rose silvery over the lake in a clear sky. Four of us found a boat and off we went out over the lake in the moonlight for more than a mile. It was a grand ride for those who are wholly fearless of water. Moonlight on the Lake was then no dream. By the time we reached camp again a great bonfire lit up the remaining party seated in Indian Council fashion. At this place bears and coyotes were plentiful and bear stories and encounters by the two men who served as guide and cook, and who lived at hunting in the winter, made the evening more than one of ordinary moment. The two gentlemen who had had much experience in the gold fields of Alaska, had their turn too, and too late indeed did our party retire that night.

HECKERMAN LETTER

New York Styles—On the Massachusetts to See Son.

Grand Central Depot, New York City, July 3, 1912. The train I want leaves here at 1:35 for Massachusetts and it is now only noon so that I shall have some time to note the styles, etc., of the throng as they come and go.

To one as myself not accustomed to such crowds, the scene is a very interesting one, but with all the gaiety before me, I am a little lonesome as I have had most pleasant company from Philadelphia to this city, and singular to say, the company was from Johnstown, a friend of every one there who had been in the great flood. The name is Billsworth and at present one of the fifty-four bookkeepers for John Wanamaker at his Philadelphia store.

My rush and the various makes of hats and styles of dresses were like the sands on the seashore, being so numerous. I have often thought it wrong for mothers to allow their daughters to wear such exaggerated costumes in public. They not only allow it but they smile with pride at the attention attracted in such a public place, when they are stared at by strangers.

Here are two ladies. I think perhaps mother and daughter, one about forty and the other eighteen. The younger one was quite tall and thin and probably weighed one hundred pounds. It is needless to say she was very thin. Now the dress and headgear were of that peculiar style and type that a person with but one eye would have cast glances after her. The costume consisted of a skirt of black and white material. The stripes ran crosswise or you should say bias. It was a hobble skirt, as any one could see, having a band about two inches wide, around the skirt where one would suppose the knees ought to be so that it looked decidedly funny to Dad who spoke to a gent sitting next to him and he said, "Yes, if an officer caught you or I out dressed thus, we would be arrested." Of course, the lace jabot was absent and her chest was exposed in a long V. She also wore black kid pumps, with diamond horse shoe buckles. Her hat was a summer one with two wings thereon, looking much as if she were ready to fly. She resembled very much the lady beside her, who was tastefully gowned, and who beamed with fond motherly pride every time a passerby cast a long bewildering glance at her daughter's costume. To say the least, this exaggeration and very bad taste can be seen on nearly every young creature that comes into this large depot as well as out on the street.

One school girl proudly strutted among the seats as if looking for some one. She wore a pair of long amethyst ear-rings and a hat pin with three or four well-set amethysts in it and dangling from the hat pin was a pendant with an amethyst in it. I never in all my traveling saw anything like this before. Most, if not all, of these young girls were rough and without a single exception, all were most lavishly powdered so much so, that one could have scraped it off with Aunt Dinah's cotton hoe.

One looking at these beamed creatures, feels much inclined to ask them where their mothers are. In a very few cases the mothers are along, dividing with them the doubtful honors and masculine eyes. Now what is the exact or true reason for this peculiar blindness of mothers, to the extremely bad taste of their daughters' style of dress? Some say the girls must dress "cathey" for fear they might miss a trick in the game of husband catching. They should be urged to leave the rouge, powder, frizzes and all that goes to make hideous a lovely complexion at home. The girl being talked about is boldly gazed at by the men and it is doubtful if it pays in the end to run the risk of losing a whole hand or to take a trick is the question of the hour.

The time for my train to move is here and six hours later and I will be with my baby boy in Massachusetts. He is the baby even if he is six feet four and as straight as an arrow. One who has no bad habits and one who loves salted P-nuts and the girl from Springfield, Mass. One who takes care of himself and who is employed by the General Electric Company at a good salary.

My prayer has been answered now. For twenty-five years I have prayed that my health might be spared to see my children grow up and have money enough to give each an education, all of which God in His infinite mercy has granted me.

Yours truly,

M. P. Heckerman.

How Enoch Arden Died

How Enoch Arden Died is a powerful story of Western ranch life in the July Sports Afield; while Conger Fishing in the Bristol Channel will set every fisherman's pulse to beating faster. The Battle of Beaver Canyon accurately depicts the latest attack made upon our Indian wards by a band of Colorado cowboys. The issue is an especially strong fishing number, many enthusiastic fishermen contributing articles of an original nature from all parts of the country, and the same may be said of the shooting and hunting departments. At the Edge of the Cloud—dealing with life in the Ozark Mountains—faithfully depicts existing conditions in that section; while the department, Around the Camp-Fire, is one that every genuine sportsman will keenly enjoy. All in all, the July Sports Afield is rarely interesting. Your newsdealer can supply you; if not, send 15 cents to Sports Afield, 542 South Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill.

It is guaranteed by F. W. Jordan to stop falling hair, itching scalp and dandruff, or money back. It kills the dandruff germ and keeps the hair full of life and youthful vigor. Reliable Alfalfa Seed

There is on the market much alfalfa seed fouled with weeds that may become a pest, much that comes from too far south, and not a little has been adulterated with trefoil, etc.

We expect to cut alfalfa for from 7 to 10 years. Why take chances with dangerous seed?

The Exchange is buying for its members perfectly clean seed, very high in germination and Montana grown, at a cost of $11.94 per bushel or $19.90 per 100 pounds at Minneapolis. But there are a good many people (some members and some not) who want to seed down an acre or less this year, to try the plant on their own farms, before they go into it heavily.

The Exchange has made an arrangement whereby the highest grade of Montana grown seed will be shipped to it at Schellsburg, and there carefully inspected and tested. It will then be sold out in lots of not over 15 pounds to any one person, 15 pounds being enough for an acre, where such high grade seed is used. It will be sold at exact cost, 21c per pound, which includes freight and hauling to Schellsburg, but not freight from the railroad station at Mann's Choice to the person ordering the seed. It would be a very good idea, therefore, for several who wish to make a trial, to send together for their seed, to save freight. It will be put up in separate sacks, but several sacks can be shipped to one person for redistribution, if desired.

To each person applying for seed, and sending the money to pay for same, the Exchange will arrange to have Mr. A. B. Ross mail at once his recent letter of instructions regarding alfalfa, and will also arrange with the Department of Agriculture for the sending without cost, at the proper time, inoculating material for the alfalfa and instructions for its use.

This is a very unusual offer. It will be held open only for orders mailed on or before August 1st next. In explanation of the offer we simply say—from your point of view it means that you will get perfectly clean, safe, inspected seed. From our point of view we will have shown you the kind of service the Exchange is giving its members. It is admittedly an open bid for membership, based on clean, effective service.

There will not be the slightest obligation on anyone getting this seed to join the Exchange. If you want to join, and get the benefit of general service always as clean and effective, you can send 25 cents for a year's dues to the Exchange. But that is to be only if your own interests dictate it.

The Exchange is organized in such a form that no member can under any condition become liable for anything but his own orders. We think it a pretty strong service and thoroughly safe.

LETTER FROM PHILIPPINES

Chaplain Lutz Writes of Trip From San Francisco to Zamboanga.

Zamboanga, P. I., May 8, 1912. The Gazette, Bedford, Pa.

My dear Editor:—You will pardon our long delay in making good our promise. This is the land of tomorrow. Here the responsibility of obligation fails to stimulate activity.

I shall sketch for you in this letter our voyage from San Francisco, Cal., to Zamboanga, Mindanao, P. I. The change of station covers a distance of about eight thousand miles, and a period of thirty-three days, passing from a temperate into a torrid climate.

Promptly at noon on Monday, February 5, 1912, the U. S. Army Transport Sherman cast loose from the dock at San Francisco and headed for the Golden Gate. An hour later, we dropped our pilot and found ourselves riding on the waters of the vast Pacific.

The sailing order for the transport for this trip was to take her out of the usual channels and into strange waters. Having cleared the bar at the entrance of Golden Gate, we headed south for Monterey, Cal., a distance of about one hundred miles. After steaming down the coast all afternoon, we entered the historic harbor after dark, at about 7:30 p. m., and lay at anchor opposite the old custom house, where the flag of the United States first waved on the Pacific Coast.

Here our regiment, the 8th U. S. Infantry, was waiting to embark for service in the Philippines. Immediately after anchoring, the loading of the troop, baggage and property was begun, and completed in just twenty-four hours. So that on the evening of February 6 we sailed out of the harbor of Monterey, and as the rays of the lighthouse light faded away, we lost sight of our native shores.

A few hours out, we encountered fog that continued intermittently for several days. On the eighth day out from Monterey, after a fair voyage, at 2 p. m., we entered the harbor of Honolulu, 2,100 miles west of the shores of California. This completed the first stage of our long journey, and everyone was happy and thankful that so far the voyage had been a safe one.

Here we stopped for about forty-eight hours, and left off a few officers and several hundred troops, which considerably eased the rather crowded condition of the transport. During our stay here the transport coaled, taking on about 1,200 tons of coal or 40 carloads of the average capacity that you see passing through Bedford, and yet this was only about a twenty days' supply. At an average speed the consumption of the transport is between sixty and seventy tons every twenty-four hours. The Honolulu coal supply comes from Japan, which is cheaper than anything that can be obtained from the States.

We spent the following day with some friends visiting the city and seeing the sights in the vicinity, which are varied and interesting. We also met several old friends among whom was Dr. Robert Culler, son of Rev. M. L. Culler, former pastor of the Bedford Lutheran Church. We sailed the next afternoon at 1 o'clock for Guam.

From Honolulu to Guam is approximately 4,000 miles. The transport makes it in about twelve days actual time. It is a long stretch and grows monotonous.

Wednesday, February 21, was dropped as the day we passed the international date line. On Saturday, the 24th, we passed Wake Island to the north but were too far out to see it as land is very low.

On the following Thursday, February 29, at 6:30 a. m., we dropped anchor in the harbor of Guam. This is one of the U. S. mid-Pacific coaling stations. It is also a cable relay station. All transports on their outward voyage stop here. Here we left a few passengers and some supplies. The most beautiful sight here is the long coral reef that partly encircles the harbor. The ship having discharged her cargo for this port we sailed at 1 p. m. the same day.

While at Guam, orders were received by cable, changing the route of the transport. Instead of sailing to the south of Mindanao, we were directed to meet the transport Warren in the San Bernardino Strait and transfer the Manila mail and passengers. The orders were changed a few hours after sailing by wireless making the meeting point off Colbayog on the west coast of Samar.

Monday morning, March 4, we sighted land on the east coast of Samar, and at 3 p. m. anchored off Colbayog. The Warren however had not yet arrived. At 10 o'clock that night, we received a wireless from her that she would arrive at daylight the next morning.

The following morning the Warren lay aside us. By 9 a. m. passengers, baggage and mail were transferred and we sailed south. Toward evening we entered the narrow channel that separates the island of Negros and Cebu. That night, we witnessed a very picturesque scene. On the Negros side the shore for miles was illuminated with continuous fires of natives cleaning the ground for their spring planting and on Cebu side there were hundreds of fishing boats bearing torches, coasting along the shore as far as the eye could reach. It was a rare and beautiful sight as seen from the transport, as we passed down through the midst of it.

The following morning in the distance we could see the mountains of Mindanao, the island to be our future home. At about 2:30 p. m. we lay off Zamboanga, and immediately the general apathy of the tropics was seen and felt. The next morning, Thursday, March 7, at 7:30, we landed in Zamboanga, the famous capital of the Moro Province. In a later letter we shall tell you of the city, etc. S. M. Lutz.

Your Lungs and Throat.

The preparation mentioned by the Rev. Chas. Sager has been for over sixty years of incalculable worth to sufferers from consumption, asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, grippe, coughs, colds and all lung and throat diseases, and is a household remedy in many many homes to which it has brought health and happiness.

Mr. C. A. ABBOTT, August 11, 1905.

60 Ann St., New York City.

Dear Sir: I have known for over 40 years of the effects of Wilson's Remedy (Wilson's Preparation of Hypophosphites and Bismuth) in cases of pulmonary troubles. At this point I will say to you what you have not before known of that 40 years since, while I was a resident of N. Y. City, I was severely ill with lung trouble. Physicians said I was a consumptive and my family physician told me that he thought I could not recover. My attention was directed to the Wilson Remedy, which I used with splendid effect. I have been on my feet and at work ever since my cure. Yours truly,

Rev. CHAS. SAGER.

Pastor M. E. Church, Hunter, (Greene Co.) N. Y.

The above letter shows what a great boon the Wilson Remedy was to Mr. Sager, but it is but one of thousands received testifying to the curative powers of this wonderful remedy. Write at once to Mr. Abbott at the above address and he will furnish you convincing proof of the great worth to humanity of this preparation.

The Girl and the Flag

Oh, here's to the girl and the flag we love—
And nothing our love can sever,
No matter the trail of our wayward feet,
Our girl and our flag—forever!

She sits on her throne in the mottled shade,
A crown on her curly tresses,
And over her gaily the old flag floats
In a flutter of love's carousals!

And always I see them with tear-dimmed eyes,
The maid and the flag—but never
For me shall exist but these—
Our girl and our flag—forever!

FIRECRACKERS

Not Qualified.
The Ladies' committee on the celebration of the Fourth was discussing the proposed program of exercises.
"I think," suggested a dimpled blonde, "that it would be awful nice to have some man with a good voice read the Declaration of Independence."
At this juncture a woman with a square jaw and deep-set eyes observed:
"It might be well, but I am opposed to having a married man read the document. It does not do to allow them to encourage themselves too much."

"THE GLORIOUS FOURTH."

Mr. Prosy—My boy, do you know why you are celebrating this grand day?
Kid—"Cause Uncle Ed, he give me a quarter to do it with!"

Their Busy Day.
"Who," shouted the impassioned orator, "who among us has any cause to be happier than his neighbor on this glorious day of the nation's birth?"
A man with his head bandaged and both hands in a sling, arose in the rear of the hall and exclaimed:
"The doctors!"

Trouble Ahead.
Clancey—Phwat's all th' thrubble in th' alley beyant?
Hogan—Some o' th' b'ys fed Casey's goat a dozen av these cannon crackers an' now dhey's thryin' t' git him t' ate a box of matches.

Real Patriotism.
A good citizen is always a patriot.
That's the best way in the world to show patriotism.

ONLY PHILANTHROPIC.

The Boy—Poor little gal! She's so skeeered dat it would be positively ungentlemanly in me not to swat her and take de firecrackers away from her!

First to Assert Men's Rights.
Thomas Jefferson and his colleagues in the continental congress did not by any means invent liberty and equality.
But they were the first legislative assembly to declare that all men are entitled to equal rights.

Gone Over to the Enemy.
The Pup—Wow! I'll bet I never, never will bark an' wag me tail when Independence Day is mentioned after this!

Nearly All.
Mrs. Naybore—Did your little brother come home from the Fourth of July picnic all right?
Little Lizzie—Yes'm—all except his hair and fingers

PROOF OF THE DAY.

Mr. Torpedo—Well, you certainly must have celebrated!
Mr. Cracker—Yes; can't you see I'm completely busted?

Rules Jefferson Lived By

The hundred and sixty-eighth anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson was celebrated with a big banquet in Indianapolis April 13. In this connection Jefferson's ten rules of life, which follow, will be of interest:

1. Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today.
2. Never trouble another for what you can do yourself.
3. Never spend money before you have it.
4. Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap; it will be dear to you.
5. Pride costs us more than hunger, thirst and cold.
6. We never repent of having eaten too little.
7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.
8. How much pain have cost us the evils which have never happened.
9. Take things away by their smooth handle.
10. When angry, count ten before you speak; if very angry, a hundred.

Here are some of the great principles of government advocated by Mr. Jefferson in his first inaugural address, March 4, 1801:

Equal and exact justice to all men,
of whatever state of persuasion, religious or political.

Peace, commerce and honest friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none.

The support of the state governments in all their rights as the most

WOODROW WILSON WILL WIN

In the selection of Woodrow Wilson at Baltimore on Tuesday the Democratic National Convention chose wisely, for from all signs now apparent he will be the next President of the United States.

Woodrow Wilson, the finished scholar, the fluent writer and the profound student of history and of economics, is beyond question mentally well qualified to assume the burdens that naturally rest upon the one chosen by his fellowmen to fill the position of the Nation's Chief Executive.

Intellectually well qualified, he possesses in marked degree the other essentials in the make-up of a statesman of Presidential calibre: he is honest and straightforward and he has the courage of his convictions. That he is keen in discerning is amply proved in his writings and that he is possessed of character and is moved to action by a strong moral sense has been demonstrated with sufficient frequency to make sure of it by his acts as president of Princeton University and as Governor of New Jersey. With many of the board of trustees of the great institution of learning opposed to his policies and plans he pushed right on regardless of endangering his position at the head of the university, and as Governor he was none the less courageous in carrying out his plans—in fighting the battles that resulted in good to the neighbor state and to her people, despite the organized opposition of the political bosses that had too long dominated.

Another reason for confidence in his success is the fact that he is backed by a united Democracy while the opposition is in a marked state of division. While progressive his acts depend upon his judgment as to the right or wrong course and his mind is trained to weigh and to discriminate and to judge accurately. Being progressive and constructive, he will naturally draw from the independents while losing none or few of the so-called conservative element of his own party, for he has an abiding faith in the fundamental law of the land and would not shatter the firm foundations of the government.

Again he is free—free to act for the whole people, for he owes not his nomination to any interest or interests.

Then, too, he stands on a platform that takes into account the plain people in his declarations and does not bid for the influence of the trusts by advocating tariff legislation in their favor.

He is a fine type of cultured American citizen and statesman, moral and courageous; he enjoys the confidence of the people; he merits success and will be elected President of the United States by the Democrats and the thousands of independent Republicans who will no longer do the bidding of the bosses who represent the privileged classes—thousands of those who are tired of broken promises and disregarded pledges; independents in the sense that they have reached the stage in which their manhood will no longer permit them to vote "for party right or wrong."

WILSON TO TAKE CARE OF HIS OWN

Bills of "Strapped" Delegates To Be Paid By Committee

ARGUMENT VS FISTICUFFS

Bryan's Old Eulogium of Clark Started Trouble — Streets Packed Near Convention Hall—25,000 "Outside Lookin' In."

Seagirt, N. J.—A pledge of $5,000 to pay the bills of Wilson delegates to the Baltimore convention has been made by Samuel Ludlow, Jr., a banker of Jersey City and Joseph E. Bernstein, a merchant of the same place. Their announcement was made following a conference with Governor Wilson. "We shall not permit Governor Wilson's fight for the presidency to fail for lack of funds," said Mr. Ludlow after the conference. "We will pay the hotel bills and other living expenses which the Wilson delegates here are unable to pay. If necessary we can raise $50,000 in 24 hours and will do so. We will pay any sum needed to keep these men in Baltimore."

Baltimore, Md.—On the forty-second ballot for Democratic nominee for President of the United States Wilson had 494, Clark 430 and Underwood 104 votes. Wilson had been steadily gaining and Clark of course as steadily losing. The leader, however, being a long way from two-thirds or 726 votes necessary to win.

"They are coming as slowly as cold molasses," was Governor Wilson's comment upon his gain in strength. Forensic argument had given way to the swift American punch and for a time the air was filled with enough swings, jabs, jolts, hooks and uppercuts to furnish the most sensational encountered in the prize ring ever recorded.

An affront to William J. Bryan by the Missouri followers of Champ Clark started the fray and in a moment that portion of the convention hall was a swirling maelstrom of surging, screeching, biffing and battling humanity, with the aggressive Nebraskan its smiling storm-center.

The trouble started just after the thirty-third ballot was taken. At the end of this ballot the Champ Clark people revived their drooping spirits by displaying a big banner on which the following tribute to Clark from W. J. Bryan in 1910 was printed in red:

"I have known Champ Clark 18 years. He is absolutely incorruptible and his life is above reproach. Never in all these years have I known him to be upon but one side of the question and that was the side that represented the people."

There was a cheer as the Missourians displayed the banner above their delegation. It continued for several minutes.

In the uproar which followed, Bryan stood smiling in the center of a shrieking excited mob of the Missouri delegation. Half a dozen policemen charged into the crowd.

TARIFF REFORM IS DEMOCRATIC CREED

Leading Plank of Platform Adopted by Baltimore Convention.

FAVORS FIGHT ON TRUSTS

Action of Republican Administration in Compromising With Standard Oil and Tobacco Combines Condemned—Views on Other Subjects.

Following are the principal planks of the platform adopted by the Democratic national convention at Baltimore.

The Tariff Reform.

"We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the Democratic party that the federal government under the Constitution has no right or power to impose or collect tariff duties except for the purpose of revenue and we demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of government honestly and economically administered."

"The high Republican tariff is the principal cause of the unequal distribution of wealth; it is a system of taxation which makes the rich richer and the poor poorer; under its operation the American farmer and laboring man are the chief sufferers; it raises the cost of the necessities of life to them, but does not protect their product or wages."

"We favor the immediate downward revision of the existing high, and in many cases, prohibitive tariff duties, insisting that material reductions be speedily made upon the necessities of life. Articles entering into competition with trust controlled products and articles of American manufacture where sold abroad more cheaply than at home could be put upon the free list."

"We denounce the action of President Taft in vetoing the bills to reduce the tariff in the cotton, woolen, metals and chemicals schedules and the farmers free list bills, all of which was designed to give immediate relief to the masses from the exactions of the trusts."

"The Republican party, while promising tariff revision, has shown by its tariff legislation that such revision is not to be in the people's interests and having been faithless to its pledges of 1908 it should no longer enjoy the confidence of the nation."

High Cost of Living.

"The high cost of living is a serious problem in every American home. The Republican party in its platform attempts to escape from responsibility for present conditions by denying that they are due to a protective tariff. We take issue with them on this subject and charge that excessive prices result in a large measure from the high tariff laws enacted and maintained by the Republican party, and from trusts and commercial conspirators fostered and encouraged by such laws, and we assert that no substantial relief can be secured for the people until import duties on the necessities of life are materially reduced, and those criminal conspiracies broken up."

Anti-Trust Law.

"A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. We therefore favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal as well as the civil law against trusts and trust officials, and demand enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States."

"We condemn the action of the Republican administration in compromising with the Standard Oil Company and the tobacco trust and its failure to invoke the criminal provisions of the anti-trust law against the officers of those corporations after the court had declared that from the undisputed facts in the record they had violated the criminal provisions of the law."

"We regret that Sherman anti-trust law has received a judicial construction depriving it of much of its efficacy, and we favor the enactment of legislation which will restore to the statute the strength of which it has been deprived."—such interpretation. Income Tax and Popular Election of Senators.

"We congratulate the country upon the triumph of two important reforms demanded in the last national platform, namely, the amendment of the federal constitution authorizing an income tax and the amendment providing for the popular election of senators, and we call upon the people of all the states to rally to the support of the pending propositions and secure their ratification."

"We note with gratification the unanimous sentiment in favor of the publicity before the election of campaign contributions—a measure demanded in our national platform of 1908 and at that time opposed by the Republican party, and we commend the Democratic House of Representatives for extending the doctrine of publicity to recommendations, verbal and written, upon which presidential appointments are made, to the ownership and control of newspapers and to the expenditures made by and in behalf of those who aspire to presidential nominations and we point for additional justification for this legislation to the enormous expenditures of money in behalf of the president and his predecessor in the recent contest for the Republican nomination for president.

Presidential Primaries.

"The movement towards more popular government should be promoted through legislation in each state which will permit the expression of the preference of the electors for national candidates at presidential primaries."

"We direct that the national committee incorporate in the call for the next nominating convention a requirement that all expressions of preference for presidential candidates shall be given and the selection of delegates and alternates be through a primary election conducted by the party organization in each state where such expression and election are not provided for by state law."

Term of President.

"We favor a single presidential term, and to the end urge the adoption of an amendment to the constitution making the president of the United States ineligible to re-election, and we pledge the candidate of this convention to this principle."

Railroads, Express Companies, Telegraph and Telephone Lines.

"We favor the efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines engaged in interstate commerce. To this end we recommend the valuation of railroads, express companies, telegraph and telephone lines by the interstate commerce commission, such valuation to take into consideration the physical value of the property, the original cost, the cost of reproduction, and any element of value that will render the valuation fair and just."

Banking Legislation.

"We oppose the so-called Aldrich bill or the establishment of a central bank, and we believe the people of the country will be largely freed from panics and consequent unemployment and business depression by such a systematic revision of our banking laws as will render temporary relief in localities where such relief is needed, with protection from control or domination by what is known as the money trust."

Parcels Post and Rural Delivery.

"We favor the establishment of a parcels post or postal express, and also the extension of the rural delivery system as rapidly as practicable."

The campaign contributions plank pledges the party to the enactment of a law prohibiting any corporation from contributing to a campaign fund. It also limits individual contributions to a "reasonable maximum."

The Democratic congress is heartily commended for its long list of laws for the benefit of the people after a generation of unlimited power by the Republican party. The next plank arraigns the Republican party for waste of "the money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation."

A plank on rural credits is of importance. It is recommended that an investigation of agricultural credit societies in foreign countries be made looking toward devising a suitable system for the United States. A waterways plank provides for federal control of the Mississippi and other waterways. The plan is to maintain an average depth on the big river so it will be navigable, and construct docks to prevent further floods. This plank also favors draining of all swamp lands.

The platform favors post roads. It reaffirms its declarations in the 1908 platform in regard to labor. It holds there should be a modification of the injunctive laws.

It also recommends a department of labor with a cabinet officer.

The conservation plank is also of importance and holds that conservation and development should proceed for the benefit of all the people. Immediate action is favored to make available the coal deposits of Alaska.

A pure food and public health plank declares for the union and strengthening of the various governmental agencies relating to pure food, quarantine, vital statistics and human health. This department should be administered without partiality or discrimination in favor of or against any school of medicine. The civil service law should be honestly and rigidly enforced. Legislation is favored to promote law reform. The "policy of imperialism" in the Philippines is denounced. It favors the declaration of the independence of these islands. Arizona and New Mexico are welcomed to the sisterhood of states.

Impression at Saxton Convention

It was a convention full of things strong enough to make impressions. But among them all, the one that stands out clearest in my mind is the Church of God at Saxton. The work that has been, and is being, done there is very inspiring to me. So many of us have false ideas about places. We are apt to look for things "way behind the times" in smaller towns nestled among the hills. But the work at Saxton is up-to-date and pushing on. If you wanted a children's chorus, it was ready with earnest, soulful song. Or would you prefer a cornet solo, the strains of the Holy City thrilled you with the touch and taste of the artist. If you enjoy a large, mixed chorus, you had it there with the vim and enthusiasm that come from earnestness. And perhaps your soul is stirred more deeply by the singing of a male chorus, and it so, the men were there and did the work.

Yes, it was a good convention, but I came home inspired most by the work that a faithful pastor and wife are doing, and believing more firmly than ever that it is not so much where we are as it is what we are that counts. William N. Yates.

BRYAN IN SENSATIONAL SPEECH EXPLAINS HIS VOTE—CLARK GOES TO BALTIMORE AND HITS BACK AT NEBRASKAN

Speaker in a Statement Given Out After Conference With Hearst, Stone and Other Friends Hotly Asserts That the Commoner Must Prove Charges or Retract.

Baltimore.—William J. Bryan's appearance on the platform and his violent attack upon the New York State democracy and the Ryan-Morgan-Belmont coterie of financiers proved the sensation of the Democratic National Convention. It roused the great mass of humanity to a wild demonstration at once of applause and denunciation.

Bryan threw the convention into turmoil by deserting Clark for Wilson and declaring he would not support any candidate supported by Murphy and the Ryan-Belmont crowd.

Violating all precedent Mr. Bryan mounted the platform and made a speech in which he took occasion to denounce Charles F. Murphy by name and to impugn the sincerity of the entire New York delegation. To achieve this end Mr. Bryan went through the form of obtaining unanimous consent, but there were a number of objections to his course, and these were finally withdrawn only because no individual cared to be recorded as the objector.

And when he had begun his speech Mr. Bryan took absolute charge. He yielded to those who wished to question him, wholly disregarding the chair; hurled back answers which won the galleries as much as they angered the delegates opposed to him, and through it all the leaders were obviously frightened beyond measure for fear of a Bryan stampede.

Various delegates hurled defiance at Bryan, to his obvious delight, for in every encounter he came out by far the best of it. Asked if he would support the nominee of the convention, provided such nominee were chosen through the influence of Murphy and the Ryan-Belmont interests, Bryan declared that he would not commit himself in advance, but that such support was comparable to the defence by a lawyer of a defendant after a crime had been committed, which was quite a different thing from the conspiracy of a lawyer with the culprit before the crime was committed.

And before he had closed his remarks he had, in effect, placed in the record a threat to oppose any candidate who received the support of the New York delegation and had actually made Murphy and his friends appreciate that the throwing of New York's vote to any candidate would be regarded by the Progressive forces as prima facie evidence of guilt of such candidate. To say that the New Yorkers frothed at the mouth would hardly be an exaggeration, but they were powerless. No one dared seek even to shut off the Nebraskaan. It was far too obvious that he sought to be made a martyr and would welcome anything which even remotely resembled being "steam rolled."

It would be hard to imagine a more tense situation than prevailed for more than two hours, during which the hearts of the "old guard" quaked. They trembled in their shoes lest the great magnetism of the Nebraskaan should once again fire the imagination of delegates as well as galleries to the point of combustion.

New Mexico delegates had miniature sombreros fastened to the lapels of their coats. They appeared to be more anxious to boost their new State than to shout for any of the candidates.

One of the interested spectators of the proceedings was Mrs. Taft, wife of the president, who was entertained by Mrs. Norman E. Mack, wife of the chairman of the Democratic national committee. Mrs. Taft wore white, embroidered with white cord, and a white straw hat, set off with aigrettes.

The Florida delegates spent much time boosting their own State. They wore long badges telling of the advantages to be gained by living in Florida, and at the bottom, was the invitation, "Come and see us."

Exit the "wife beater." The "wife beater" is a noise-making instrument like a clap-stick designed for "merry-making" in crowds. Men were using it so frequently on women and girls that the police ordered its banishment.

Mrs. William H. Taft attended the convention while in Baltimore Mrs. Taft was the guest of Mrs. Hugh C. Wallace and Delegate Wallace of Washington State.

Mr. Parker's glowing tribute in his speech to Bryan, whom he forthwith recommended for the chairmanship of the resolutions committee, was received with cheers.

Baltimore.—Speaker Clark came to Baltimore in response to the urgent request of ex-Senator Fred T. Dubois, his campaign manager, and George Fred Williams of Massachusetts, who represented that the Missouriian's candidacy had suffered by reason of an "attack upon his honor" made by William Jennings Bryan. The convention, apparently hopelessly deadlocked, had adjourned until Monday before the Speaker arrived.

Mr. Clark reached the city at 11:45 and went to the Emerson Hotel. There he went into conference with his manager, ex-Senator Dubois of Idaho, and William R. Hearst of New York.

After his conference Speaker Clark issued the following statement:

"To-day in the National Convention an outrageous aspersion was cast upon me, and through me upon the Democratic Party, by one who of all men ought to be the last to besmudge or betray his friends or his party.

"So far as I am personally concerned it is enough to say that the charge which reflects upon my personal or party integrity is utterly and absolutely false.

"I might afford to forget myself, but I am by the choice of the Democratic majority of the House of Representatives the ranking official Democrat in National public life. I cannot be false or corrupt without reflecting upon my party in the most serious way.

"Any man who would enter into an alliance with any selfish interest of privileged class of this country to gain the nomination for the Presidency is unworthy of the Presidency and of the Speakership of the House.

"If I have not entered into such an alliance, then the Democrat, however distinguished, who wantonly charges me with this act is a traitor to the Democratic Party, and to his professed friendship to me.

"I am not here to plead for a nomination or to attempt to influence any man's political action. Let every man proceed in this convention according to his convictions and the expressed will of his constituents.

"I ask no undue consideration from any man, be he friend or foe, but I demand exact justice from every Democrat, either in this convention or throughout the nation.

With William J. Bryan and his charge made in the convention to-day the issue is proof or retraction. I shall expect him to meet that issue.

"CHAMP CLARK."

"I came here to Baltimore to confer with my friends on matters concerning which I will probably have something to say after the conference," said Mr. Clark just before he went into the conference. "That is all I have to say now."

The fire marshal of Baltimore kept out thousands who were waiting to get into the convention hall, hoping to hear the nominating speeches. The marshal said that the armory was filled far beyond its capacity of 14,000, and he refused to allow any one else to get in.

Policemen around the convention hall chased, and sometimes captured, ticket speculators. The scalpers who at first were complaining so bitterly that nobody courted their society, grew quite disturbed when the police showed a real desire to make their acquaintance.

The women who visited Baltimore in the interest of the anti-suffrage movement say that for every hearing given the suffragists they too would demand a hearing of the resolutions committee.

Congressman D. J. Lewis, of Maryland, representing labor organizations, urged the committee to declare in favor of wiping out express companies and substituting parcels post therefor.

The credentials committee of the Baltimore convention reversed the action of the national committee and seated sixteen contesting Clark delegations from South Dakota and the District of Columbia.

Many southern and western delegates deserted the standard of Clark for that of Wilson because of the alliance of the forces back of the Missouriian with the reactionaries in support of Parker.

"With our Wilson we will win," sang Princeton boomers, but there was always one discordant note—"Jude" Jones, Princeton, 1910, insists on singing "I shall win."

The Sage of Monticello

It was at Monticello that Jefferson prepared the draught of instructions for Virginia's delegation to the congress which met at Philadelphia. His activity in the cause of the colonies brought him into special disfavor with the British and it was planned to capture Jefferson at Monticello through Tarleton's raiders. Jefferson was warned that the enemy was coming to Monticello, and he sent his family away, and he himself escaped on the former president, the purchaser of Louisiana, the chastiser of the Barbary pirates, the founder of the University of Virginia, as the scholar, the philosopher and the savant, he was known the world over.

Every day for at least eight months in the year brought its contingent of guests to Monticello. People of wealth, fashion, men of office, professional men, military and civil, lawyers, doctors, Protestant clergy, Catholic priests, members of congress, foreign ministers, missionaries, Indian agents, tourists, artists, strangers, friends. Some came from affection and respect, some from curiosity; some to give or receive advice or instruction, some from idleness, some because others set the example. And everybody who could not visit "the sage of Monticello" at least gave thought to the great retired man of the nation.

Jefferson retained his health nearly to his last days, and had the happiness of living to the fiftieth anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. He died at Monticello at 12:40 p. m. on July 4, 1826. He was buried in his own graveyard at Monticello, beneath a stone upon which was engraved an inscription prepared by his own hand: "Here is buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, of the Statute of Virginia, for Religious Liberty and Father of the University of Virginia."

"The sage of Monticello" stands today next to "the father of his country" in the esteem of the United States. And this is as it should be, for his wise counsel helped to establish this nation as firmly as did the arms and statesmanship of George Washington.

The LAST FIRECRACKER by WILBUR D. NESBIT

'Tis the last red firecracker
Left lying alone;
Are former companions
Are bursted and gone.
Not one of its kindred
Nor loved one is nigh
To observe its last sputter
Or hear its last sigh.

It lies on the sidewalk,
But none takes it up—
Little Willie has wandered
Downtown with the pup.
To inquire of the doctor
If dogs grow new tails.
For a bunch of firecrackers
Filled puppy with wails.

Uncle Thomas is resting
Upstairs on a cot.
He must lie on his stomach
His back is so hot;
Poor old grandpa is moaning
In grizzled despair,
For a wayward skyrocket
Took his beard and his hair.

Papa has his head bandaged
In coverings neat,
And a surgeon is fixing
The burns on his feet;
Mamma thinks she'll recover
The use of her arms,
Though the red fire that burned them
Caused eight fire alarms.

'Tis the last red firecracker
Where it was flung down
Ere the mantle of silence
Fell over the town.
There's no one to explode it
It lies where it fell,
And must wait for ignition
Till some one gets well.

Bones Act as Barometer.
The merits of bones as an indicator of fair or foul weather have been vouched for by the captain of an Italian steamer carrying a cargo of bones from the South American port of Buenos Aires to New York. When the ship was sailing toward a storm the skipper stated, recently, the bones creaked and moaned, and when fair weather was ahead they were silent again.

Summer colds are hard to get rid of, and frequently lead to asthma, bronchitis, and hay fever. Do not let your cold get a hold on you, but use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for quick relief. W. H. Allen, Chelsea, Wis., says: "We prefer Foley's Honey and Tar Compound to other cough medicines because it quickly cures coughs and colds. It will ward off a cold if taken in time." Contains no opiates. Ed. D. Heckerman.

The Right to Smoke.
"Do you think it looks well for women to smoke as they do in some Spanish-speaking countries?" "Well," replied the worried Londoner; "it's this way: If they're smokin' they're likely either to be quiet and comfortable, or if they're not used to it just the opposite. And either way's a good chance of keepin' 'em out of the suffragette parade."

If you keep your savings about the house. You may not lose the money itself, though it is likely you will, but you are certain to lose the interest which the money would have earned. For example, if you are able to save only as much as $1 a week, in ten years you would have $687.15 in bank if you had deposited your dollar regularly in this safe and solid institution. You put in $520 and the bank pays you $117.15 as interest.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson I.—Third Quarter, For July 7, 1912.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Mark iii, 20-35.

Memory Verses, 28, 29—Golden Text, John iii, 19—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson is found in Matt. xii as well as in Mark iii and is a sample of their treatment of Him whom they should have welcomed as their Messiah, but of whom it is written: "He was in the world, and the world was made by Him, and the world knew Him not. He came unto His own, and His own received Him not" (John i, 10, 11). In our lesson, verses 21, 22, it is written that they said: "He is beside Himself. He hath Beelzebub and by the prince of the devils casteth He out devils." They frequently told Him that He had a devil (John vii, 20; viii, 52; x, 20), and as early in the record as Matt. xii, 14, it is written that "the Pharisees went out and held a council against Him, how they might destroy Him." It was the old story of Ps. lxxxi, 11, "My people would not hearken to my voice, and Israel would none of me." Even in the days of Enoch, the seventh from Adam, we read of the ungodly and their words and deeds (Jude 15). It is also written that at the end of this age, to which we are fast hastening, there shall be only a form of godliness without the power and sound doctrine will not be endured (II Tim. iii, 1-5; iv, 3). The great adversary, the father of lies, who to Eve questioned the word of God and made God a liar, will yet gather the nations to make war with God's people, Israel, and the Lamb of God Himself, but beast and false prophet shall go alive to the lake of fire and the devil to the bottomless pit (Rev. xvii, 14; xix, 19, 20; xx, 1-3; Zech. xiv, 1, 2).

Like the multitudes who clung to Him when here in humiliation and upon whom He always had compassion, there are multitudes now who would listen to the gospel if they could hear it, but many of the religious leaders of today are as much against the gospel of God concerning His Son, Jesus Christ, as were the scribes and Pharisees against Jesus Christ. Those who today believe that Jesus is God, the Creator of all things, who died for us, bearing our sins in His own body on the cross, rose from the dead, ascended to Heaven and is coming again to set up His kingdom of righteousness and peace on this earth, are accounted unlearned, ignorant, behind the times, narrow and all else that unbelieving words can describe. But his approval is everything. How utterly foolish seemed their accusation in the light of His question, "How can Satan cast out Satan?" (Verse 23.) How great and far-reaching His saying in verse 27, "No man can enter into a strong man's house and spoil his goods except he first bind the strong man." The devil is the god of this world, blinding the minds of all unbelievers. The whole world lieth in the wicked one. And it was not wholly an untruth when he said to our Lord as he showed Him all the kingdoms of this world and the glory of them, "All that is delivered unto me, and to whomsoever I will I give it." (II Cor. iv, 4; I John v, 19; Matt. iv, 8; Luke iv, 6). Those who talk of winning the world for Christ do not seem to believe these truths nor consider the necessity of getting rid of the devil, but it stands, as our Lord said—the strong one must be bound before his goods can be taken.

The unpardonable sin of verses 29, 30, makes us think of I John v, 16: "There is a sin unto death. I do not say that he shall pray for it." Let us not forget verse 28 of our lesson. "All sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men and blasphemers wherewith so ever they shall blaspheme," and also I John i, 7, "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin." What, then, can this sin be that hath never forgiveness, but the persistent refusal to listen to the voice of the Spirit, whose delight is to point to Jesus Christ, who alone can forgive sins? As there is "none other name" (Acts iv, 12), if that name is refused or dishonored there can be no forgiveness, but only eternal damnation (verse 30).

As he was told that His mother and His brethren were without, desiring to speak to Him, He stretched forth His hand toward his disciples and said, "Behold my mother and my brethren for whoever shall do the will of my Father, which is in heaven, the same is my brother and sister and mother" (verses 31-35; Matt. xii, 46-50). On another occasion He said, "My mother and my brethren are these which hear the word of God and do it" (Luke viii, 21). When a certain one spoke of the blindness of being His mother He said, "Yea, rather blessed are they that hear the word of God and keep it" (Luke xv, 28). We cannot but think of His words on the last night concerning such as keep His words becoming a mansion in which both He and His Father would dwell. At the same time He told His Father that certain ones had received the words which the Father had given Him for them (John xiv, 23; xvii, 8). I am greatly impressed by the fact that receiving His words made Him so glad that He told His Father of it. How it must grieve Him to have His words treated as many of His professed friends treat them today, seemingly forgetting that all His words were not His, but His Father's (John xii, 49; xiv, 10). "We can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth" (II Cor. xiii, 8).

"I got a bottle of Foley Kidney Pills from our druggist and they entirely relieved me. I have more benefit from them than any other medicine." Ed. D. Heckerman.

Stimulate Children?

Ask your doctor how often he prescribes an alcoholic stimulant for children. He will probably say, "Very, very rarely." Ask him how often he prescribes a tonic for them. He will probably answer, "Very, very frequently." Then ask him about Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a strong and safe tonic for the young. Not a drop of alcohol in it.

Always keep a box of Ayer's Pills in the house. Just one pill at bedtime, now and then, will ward off many an attack of biliousness, indigestion, sick-headache. How many years has your doctor known these pills? Ask him all about them.

The Wedding Cake.

The custom of having a special cake at weddings was introduced into England by the Romans. This cake, or, rather, biscuit, signified fruitfulness, hospitality and prosperity. The rice that was showered upon a bride had a similar meaning. For many centuries after the Romans left the custom was to break the biscuit over the bride's head, and then the fragments were picked up and piled before her for distribution to her friends. At the restoration Charles II. returned with a small army of French cooks, who speedily converted the ancient biscuit into a delicious piece of confectionery, fed it with sugar and gradually adorned it with emblematical devices till it towered into the amazing structure which the luxury of later times has developed.—London Chronicle.

Apes and Beards.

Almost all apes have beards. Darwin says that gorillas, chimpanzees and orang outangs have also stiff and bristly hairs upon their upper lips, resembling cats' whiskers. The beards of apes possess a remarkable resemblance to those of men in being almost invariably lighter in color than the hair of the head. In apes the chin growth is most frequently yellow or red, becoming white in age. It is common to both sexes, although more strongly developed in the male. Apes and monkeys also have eyebrows as well, which do not grow thickly together as in human beings, but are scattered through the hair, covering the part of the face which would be called the forehead in man.

Cutting a Hailstorm.

During a severe hailstorm in the Himalayas our native gardener brought out a hatchet and placed it edge upward in the garden to "cut the storm," as he said. Catlin in his "North American Indians" describes a ceremony of the Mandan Indians in which hatchets and edged tools are sacrificed to the "spirits of the waters" to avert a recurrence of the great deluge, of which the tribe has the tradition.—London Notes and Queries.

A Partnership.

"My father and I know everything in the world," said a small boy to his companion. "All right," said the latter. "Where's Asia?" It was a stiff question, but the little fellow answered coolly, "That is one of the questions my father knows."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Converted Uses.

Assistant.—As we've given up our music department, I may as well throw away this sign reading, "Take This Home and Try It on Your Piano." Manager.—Throw it away? Certainly not! Stick it up on the furniture polish counter.—Boston Transcript.

A great man is made up of qualities that meet or make great occasions.—Lowell

In these days of high cost of living, a medicine that gets a man out of bed and able to work in a few days is a valuable and welcome remedy. John Heath, Michigan Bar, Cal., had kidney and bladder trouble, was confined to his bed, unable to turn without help. "I commenced using Foley Kidney Pills and can truly say I was relieved at once." His example is worth following. Eu. D. Heckerman.

Spaniards Cut Words.

The most amusing instances of laziness in speaking are to be found in Spain. The Spaniards have made it a practice to cut down every word to an irreducible minimum of sound. Take their word for "son," which is as near as possible "eccho" (ch guttural, as in "loch"). That was originally the Latin "filius." The French made it "fils," the Italians "figlio" (feelyo). The Spaniards could not be bothered with the "r" at the beginning or the "i" in the middle, so they simply pronounced the two vowels with a guttural noise, which comes natural to them, in between—"eccho."—London Mail.

PAPER BAG COOKING

Great System Perfected by M. Soyer, Famous London Chef.

REINFORCED FISH DISHES.

By Martha McCulloch Williams. Fish is especially good for brain-workers, through supplying phosphorus, of which the brain stands always in need to repair its own waste. But where fish comes frequently to table it ought to have the reinforcement of nitrogenous substances, such as milk and eggs. There are some fish dishes which are particularly adapted to paper bag cooking. Before undertaking them it is well to have in hand sundry paper soufflé cases. Though the fish are to be cooked in paper bags, a la Soyer, the cases make the cooking somewhat easier, and the serving very much more sightly.

But rissoles or patties require no cases. Fish pudding and fish custard can be cooked and served beautifully in shells of pastry, baked in a mold, then taken out, filled and slid into a paper bag. All the dishes require cooked fish either baked or boiled. You can do either in the paper bag. For boiling, put in with the cleaned fish a tumbler of water, seal the greased bag, and cook in a hot oven fifteen to twenty minutes. Baking requires less water and about the same time in the oven.

For fish custard, free the cooked fish from all skin and bone, cut up, but not too small, and season to taste with salt and black and red pepper with a grate of nutmeg if desired. Lay without packing in a buttered soufflé case and cover with a custard thus proportioned: Beat two whole eggs and one extra yolk very light, add a pint of sweet milk and a pinch of salt. Beat all well together. Put the case in a bag, which will need but little greasing, seal and set in a very moderate oven for half an hour. Make a peep hole, look in and if the custard is not firmly set, cook until it is. Serve very hot, garnished with curled parsley.

Begin fish rissole and patties by making good puff paste. While it gets properly cold, flake fine a pint of fish, freeing it of bone and skin. Season with butter, salt and pepper to taste and a very little finely minced onion. Roll the paste rather thin and cut out circles with a saucer. Put a spoonful of minced fish on half of each circle, fold over, pinch tight, brush over with beaten egg, then put in a bag with a lump of butter and cook in a very hot oven for eight minutes.

For patties bake the pastry into tiny shells, fill them with the minced fish, sprinkle on top grated cheese, slip in a bag and cook ten minutes in a moderate oven. These are not quite so rich as the rissoles which are in effect fried in the bag.

Fish timbale requires two cups of cold fish, chopped fine or ground, one cup of cream sauce, a tablespoon of butter, two fresh eggs, a little minced parsley, and salt and pepper—both kinds—to taste. Mix the fish well with the sauce, beat in the butter, then add the eggs beaten very light, and mix all thoroughly. Put into a buttered soufflé case, slip inside a bag, and cook in a very moderate oven half an hour.

For fish pudding take a pint of boiled fish, grind it fine, add to it one and a half tablespoonfuls of butter, half a tablespoonful of flour, one teaspoonful of salt, a quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper, and the same of onion juice. Mix all well and set in hot water while you beat two eggs very light with half a cup of sweet milk. Pour the mixture on the fish and beat hard, keeping it over the hot water. When it is hot through, pour it into the prepared bag, keeping the shape as round as possible, tie the bag-top together firmly, and set on a trivet, in a moderate oven for half an hour. This should set it firmly.

Fish rolls are fine for breakfast or luncheon. Mince cooked fish fine, season well, and heat in a rich cream sauce along with the crumbs scooped from the hearts of breakfast rolls. Cut a thin slice from the top of the rolls before beginning to scoop them. Leave only the hard crust. Fill the rolls with the mixture, grate a little hard-boiled egg-yolk over them, seal in a paper bag, and crisp for seven minutes in a hot oven.

Pinked fish is not beyond the paper bag. Get a half-inch oak plank cut to a size to go easily inside a big bag. Make it very hot under the gas flame, butter it well, then lay on it the fish, cleaned, seasoned, buttered all over, and spread as flat as possible. Slip into a greased bag and cook for half to three-quarters of an hour in a hot oven. There should be a trivet under the bag the same as if it held no plank. Make a peep hole to find out if the fish is well done—it had better be nearly in the middle, so no gravy will be lost.

Boiled fish, creamed, suits many palates, especially those of tender age. Let the fish get cold, free it of skin and bone, and then flake, but not fine. Put a layer of it in the bottom of a buttered soufflé case, dot with bits of butter, dust with salt and cayenne, and add a few fried crumbs. Cover with cream sauce, upon which spread more fish. Keep on with the layers until the case is full. Then cover with a thick layer of fried crumbs, squeeze a little lemon juice on, and bake inside a greased bag in a quick oven for fifteen minutes. Serve from the case, and garnish with hard boiled egg.

OUR UNCLE SAM.

His Nickname, It Is Claimed, Originated in Troy, N. Y.

Troy, N. Y., is said to be the place where the name "Uncle Sam" originated, says the New York Sun. After the last declaration of war with England by the colonies a New York contractor, Elbert Anderson, visited Troy and made it his headquarters for the purchase of provisions for the Continental army. The supplies were duly inspected before shipment. One of the inspectors was Samuel Wilson, brother of Ebenezer, also an inspector and known as Uncle Sam to the workmen whom he superintended.

The tasks in which the beef and pork were packed were marked with the initials of Elbert Anderson, the contractor, and the United States, thus: "E. A.—U. S." The first pair of initials were of course familiar to the men, but the "U. S." stumped them. The fact was that the name United States was then so new to these countrymen that its initials were a complete puzzle. They turned to the nearest explanation, a humorous one and intended as a joke on their boss. If "E. A." stood for Elbert Anderson, then, they opined, "U. S." must stand for "Uncle Sam" Wilson. The joke spread to the continental army, which carried it to every part of the country.

FLAX WEAVING IS ANCIENT.

And the Process Has Improved but Little in Forty Centuries.

Flax weaving, according to a recent authority, is 4,000 years old as an industry. Egypt was the first country to raise flax. All fine table linen is made from water spun flax, as water is essential to its manufacture. Vapor has been tried, but unsuccessfully. The process of manufacture has improved but little in 4,000 years, the linen made by the Egyptians being often found in an excellent state of preservation, wrapped about the bodies of mummies.

There is no grass bleached linen to day, as grass bleaching is too slow a process. Chemicals are used to short en the work.

Very little flax is raised in the United States because the air contains too little moisture. The finest lawns and handkerchiefs are made in Ireland, and the Scotch linens wear perhaps better than any. Straight line patterns do not wear as well as figures with rounded edges.

In single thread damask the same number of threads run each way. In double thread damask there is double the number of threads in the weft, which doubles the wear.—New York Post.

Gave Up All Hopes of Living

Great Kidney Remedy Saved His Life.

About nine years ago, I had given up hopes of living much longer, owing to the fact that I had severe kidney and liver trouble. I took treatments from several very good physicians and each one after treating me for some time, told me that they could do nothing for me and after these statements I decided that I would have to give up myself. Finally, I received a sample bottle of the well-known Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, which I decided to try as a last hope. Even the sample started to make me improve, and noting this improvement, I kept taking Swamp-Root regularly and after being down to the weight of 115 pounds and having a very yellowish complexion and all hopes of recovery gone, I am now in very fine condition, my weight being 170 pounds, and complexion the healthiest one could have.

I highly recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to every person who has any disease of the kidneys or liver in its worst stages and you have my consent to publish this statement as I wish to recommend Swamp-Root to any one having kidney or liver trouble.

Yours respectfully,
GEORGE MILLER,
735 Osborne St., Sandusky, Ohio.
Subscribed and sworn to before me, a Notary Public in and for Erie County, Ohio, this 24th day of October, 1911.

ALVIN H. BIEHL,
Notary Public.
We sold the Swamp-Root to the above and believe same statement to be true.

A WARNING TO BOYS

Young Johnny Winters, strong and well,
Went out to celebrate the day,
A cannon cracker in his hand,
His heart attuned to fun and play!

He set the cracker up on end
And lit the fuse, as you have done;
Then as it sputtered, sparked and spat,
Young Johnny left it on the run!

Excitedly he turned about
And waited, with his chums, the noise!
"It's fizzled!" then said careless John,
"I'll take a look," he told the boys.

Above the powder stick he bent—
The air was filled with ripping sound!
The boys rushed up with awestruck eyes
To Johnny, lying on the ground!

He lay upon the cheerless sod,
His face all marred with bloody chairs—
And all through life the boy must wear
The cannon cracker's awful scars!

Take warning, boys, from Johnny's fate
And do not harm your eyes or face.
Be patriotic, brave and true
But spurn the things that hurt the face!

Obesity.
Obesity is nearly always the body's vote of censure for eating too much food, or taking too little exercise, and it is only necessary properly to balance the income and expenditure in order to keep a well-nourished body. It is important to note that it is usually around those muscles which are rarely exercised in any adequate manner that fat accumulates, e. g., the abdominal muscles.—Alexander Bryce, "Life and Health."

George L. Higbie, Manton, Mich., used Foley Kidney Pills for kidney and bladder trouble. He says: "I find for my case no other medicine equals Foley Kidney Pills for beneficial effect." They are a safe and reliable medicine for kidney trouble and rheumatism. Contain no harmful drugs. Ed. D. Heckerman.

True Nobleness.
To love the unlovely, to sympathize with the contrary-minded, to give to the uncharitable, to forgive such as never pity, to be just to men who make iniquity a law, to repay their ceaseless hate with never-renewing love, is one of the noblest attainments of man, and in this he becomes most divine.—Theodore Parker.

Functions of the Happy.
A happy man or woman is a better thing to find than a five-pound note. He or she is a radiating focus of good will; and their entrance into a room is as though another candle had been lighted. We need not care whether they could prove the forty-seventh proposition; they do a better thing than that—they practically demonstrate the great theorem of the Livableness of Life.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

Cocaine.

Travelers in Peru and countries where coca grows chew the leaves of this plant for the purpose of allaying the sense of hunger and the feeling of exhaustion that accompanies it. At first the leaves were thought to possess food elements, but now it is known that the cocaine they contain merely allays the irritability of the nerves that produce the sense of hunger. Cocaine is an alkaloid made from the coca leaf, which has the effect of completely destroying the sensibility of nerves. The discovery of this active principle of the coca leaf explained fully and satisfactorily the effect produced by chewing the leaves.

LAND OF EASY DIVORCES.

In the Barbary States It Is "Woman, Take Thy Goods and Go."

Always over the head of the Arab woman hangs the shadow of divorce. Nowhere in the world does the law so facilitate the separation of man and wife as in those lands so fittingly named the Barbary states.

If an Arab grows tired of his wife's looks or her actions or her dress, if he wishes to replace her with another or if he is weary of married life and does not wish any wife at all he does not need to go to the trouble or nominal expense of divorcing her, but gets rid of her instead by the simple process of "repudiation," which consists in saying to her, "Woman, get thee hence; take thy things and go."

For the man this is a case of "heads I win, tails you lose," for, though he is free to marry again, the woman is not and can obtain a legal release only by returning to him the money which he paid for her.

Without her husband's consent a woman can obtain a divorce only if she is able to prove that he beats her without sufficient provocation, if he refuses her food, clothing or shelter or if she discovers a previous wooing on her husband's part, for all previous betrothals or offers of marriage, even though the lady refused him, constitute grounds for divorce.—Metropolitan Magazine.

A ROYAL SNUB.

The Czar Handed It to Louis Napoleon and Got It Back.

It has been urged by a French author that Napoleon III. entered into the Crimean war on the side of Great Britain because he had been well received in the London clubs during his sojourn in that country. But there might have been another potent factor independent of the emperor's pleasant recollections of the English, and that was the slight to which he was subjected by the czar of Russia, Nicholas I.

When Napoleon ascended the throne as emperor he notified all the reigning sovereigns of the fact, addressing them as "Monsieur mon frere." With the exception of the czar they replied adopting the same formula. Nicholas, however, began his reply, "Mon grand ami." This is the style adopted by sovereigns when addressing presidents of republics. Napoleon fully understood the czar's meaning.

At the New Year's reception of the diplomatic body he went up to Count Kisslew, the Russian ambassador, and said to him:

"I have received a letter from your sovereign which flatters me greatly. He writes to me, 'Mon grand ami.' One chooses his friends. He cannot choose his brothers."
